

Cremation Jewelry

The photos illustrate an example of what the finished product may look like. Your loved one's ashes will be encased in fused glass. You may see sparkles (added dichroic glass shards) and bubbles which add to the wonder and amazement of each individual piece. Just as everyone is unique so is the outcome of each glass piece. Some ashes create more bubbles than others, some migrate together, and color of ashes may vary but are typically white.

About the Process

The customer is responsible for sending the cremains directly to the artist. It is permissible to mail cremains through the US Postal Service using USPS Express Mail. The cost to send cremains is $25.50 at the customer's expense. For information related to mailing cremains you can visit <https://www.usps.com/ship/shipping-restrictions.html>

Only a very small amount of ashes is needed. 1/8 tsp is enough to create several pieces of jewelry. Unused ashes will be returned with your finished product via USPS Express Shipping. After the ashes are received, please allow up to 7-10 business days to complete the piece(s).

The artist will handle your loved one's ashes with the utmost respect, honor and consideration. Her goal is to guide a positive energy exchange. You are encouraged to submit a photo of your loved one and/or songs special to their loved one that the artist plays while creating the piece. This will of course be returned to you with the finished piece. The process is very spiritual and respectful.

The artist cleanses her environment and clears her own energy so that she may experience the true honor of creating such works of art of another's being. The jewelry is created by fusing cremains in glass. You will see sparkles and bubbles amidst the ashes that add to the wonder and amazement of the cremation necklaces or earrings.

Once the glass is finished in the kiln, it will then be made into wearable memorial jewelry. Industrial grade epoxy is used to set the glass in the setting. It creates an extremely strong bond that will hold for a very long time. The finished product will then be mailed back to you in a gift box with a certificate of authenticity. The entire process from purchase to receipt of finished product takes around 3 weeks. Much of that time is due to the mail.

There are no refunds. Some pendants are small and some are very large. Jewelry pieces are shown next to a coin for size perspective. The jewelry should not be worn while swimming/showering etc for multiple reasons. Soaps, chemicals, perfumes, etc. can affect the finish over time. The standard chain offered with the pendants is a Silver finish brass.
